1. Rights and Obligations of the Buyer

1). The buyer has the right to request the seller to produce commodities according to the design drawings and order information provided by the buyer. If there is any special requirement, the buyer should provide the appropriate written description. The buyer shall be liable for any loss resulting from incorrect description or non-standard design (incorrect description, non-standard or out of capabilities design).

2). If the buyer has any objection to the quality of the commodities produced by the seller, he/she shall make a claim within one week from the date of receiving the commodities. Otherwise, it means the buyer approves the commodities.

3). The buyer warrants that all the materials submitted to the seller have complete intellectual property rights and have obtained the necessary approvals and authorizations (if any) without infringing the legitimate rights and interests of any third party. In the event of any intellectual property disputes, the buyer undertakes to bear all the losses of the seller.

2. Rights and Obligations of the Seller

1). If the seller's commodities have quality problems, the seller and the buyer shall solve the problem through communication. The seller shall only bear the compensation for the price of the damaged commodities.

2). The seller shall keep the personal information, data and files of the buyer confidential, and the seller may refuse the request of the buyer's information from those who have not verified their identity.

3. Force Majeure

The seller shall not hold any responsibility for failure or delay in performance due to Force Majeure. Any event or circumstance beyond control shall be regarded as Force Majeure, including but not restricted to labor shortage, energy, fuel, machinery or materials failure to achieve production, technical failure, war, civil unrest, infectious diseases, epidemics, any government bills, laws or regulations (including any judicial order or decree), any failure of communication or power, labor dispute, natural disaster, fire, flood, earthquake, explosion, terrorist act or other natural disasters.

4. Import and Export Compliance

The Buyer warrants that it and its subsidiaries and affiliates shall comply with all applicable import, export, and cross-border trade laws, regulations, official orders, sanctions and restrictions ("Import and Export Control Regulations"), including, without limitation, the control regulations of China, the United States, the European Union, the United Nations, and other relevant jurisdictions, in connection with any export, re-export, import, resale, transfer, transshipment, distribution, use, or disposal of products purchased or to be purchased from the Seller. The Buyer further represents and continuously warrants compliance with the foregoing requirements and strict adherence to the Customer Compliance Statement it has executed.

Both parties acknowledge that the aforesaid Buyer's warranty and the signed Customer Compliance Statement constitute essential conditions for the performance of this Contract. Any breach by the Buyer, including a breach of such warranty, the Customer Compliance Statement, or any applicable Import and Export Control Regulations, or refusal to provide necessary compliance information, shall constitute a material and substantial breach of this Contract. The Seller may, upon giving notice to the Buyer, immediately terminate this Contract, and may suspend or cancel orders, refuse delivery, require the return or disposal of products, and report to competent authorities. The Seller reserves all other rights and remedies under this Contract and applicable laws, including the right to recover direct and indirect losses, reasonable enforcement costs, and any fees or penalties imposed by governmental authorities.

If the Buyer's breach occurs or is confirmed after the order has entered the production stage, any amounts paid by the Buyer shall be non-refundable, and the Buyer shall bear all losses, fines, and other related expenses arising therefrom.

The Buyer acknowledges and agrees that any updated version of the Customer Compliance Statement issued by the Seller shall automatically apply to this Contract and to all ongoing and future orders, without the need for a separate amendment to this Contract.
